8 years first sentence for felon Phillip Jones

Phillip Jones, Fox Lake, was sentenced to eight years in the Illinois Dept. of Corrections by Judge Jack Hoogasian on charges of gun possession by a convicted felon, made by the Antioch Police Dept.

Jones, a parole violator, is expected to serve out his previous sentence before starting to serve the eight years.

He is still in police custody waiting to face charges of two counts of armed robbery and one charge of armed violence in Cook County.

Jones was arrested by the Antioch Police, while carrying a cocked, loaded gun in his pocket, after a New Hampshire police department called Antioch with a report that Jones was with two minor run-aways from the state and had forced them into sexual acts at gunpoint.

While in the custody of the Antioch Police, Jones asked that the Fox Lake Police Dept. disarm two pipe bombs that were at the home of his parents in Fox Lake.

The minors with Jones that called the New Hampshire police, were returned to agencies in that state.

Resort's zoning change goes to public hearing

There will be a hearing at the Antioch Township Hall at 1:30 p.m., on Wednesday, March 14, on a request for the rezoning of 5.56 acres of a 25 acre parcel of land on which the Old Port Cove and Marina stands on the north side of the intersection of Bluff Lake and Elime Rds., in Antioch Township.

According to attorney Andrew Lynch, the Lake County Building and Zoning Dept. has discovered that a 5.5 acre plot, on which a portion of a trailer park is built, is only zoned for resort residential use.

The rezoning request is for a change to commercial-recreational zoning, allowing owner Martin DeFoor to legally use that small portion along with the rest of the 25 acres of the resort land in the continued operation of a resort, marina, restaurant cocktail lounge and a trailer park.

Breakfast available Dist. 34 implements phone, food programs

by GLORIA DAVIS

A survey of parents of students of Antioch Grade School Dist. 34, via a questionnaire, and a tally of the results of that consensus of parents wishes, prompted the district's board of education to approve the implementation of a new phone attendance program.

The program will start on Monday Feb. 27, as a service to parents who wish to participate.

The last regular board meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 21, also brought partial approval to the proposed breakfast program.

The board decided to let the need for breakfast up to the discretion of the teacher instead of having a full breakfast program for all the pupils, which would not only hamper the present school bus schedule, but cause the school cafeteria to be open too many extra hours.

The board's approval means that there will be a breakfast in the cafeteria for any students whose teachers decided that they need the meal. Parents will be expected to pay for breakfasts eaten at school although the district will pay that cost if the parents cannot.

The board also approved the purchase of new tires for the school buses. A vote approving the purchase of 24 radial tires from the Goodyear Tire Store in Mt. Prospect, for $3,607, will implement a trial period for that type of tire.

The bid of Antioch Tire, of $4,970 for 50 tires and tubes, was also accepted by the board.

The final move of the board was one of disapproval. The board voted to return the proposed school calendar to Supt. Don Skidmore, asking him to take the calendar back to the other school superintendents in the area in an effort to set one up where the starting and closing dates of all the area schools will coincide for the convenience of the parents who have children in more than one school.

Millburn school bus smacked from behind

A Wisconsin man remains in critical condition at Victory Memorial Hospital, Waukegan, after the vehicle he was driving crashed into the rear-end of a Millburn School Dist. school bus at the intersection of Rte. 45 and Edwards Rd.

Noel Elfering, chairman of Bristol Township, who was the driver of the empty bus, spent two days in the hospital for treatment of whiplash and bruises after a car driven by Ernest Valles, 57, Paddock Lake, struck the bus just after its load of students had been dropped off at the school.

The accident occurred at 8:55 a.m., on Tuesday, Feb. 21. The bus was pushed almost 150 feet forward after the impact, as it was turning onto Edwards Rd. from Rte. 45.

The Valles car was following the bus on Rte. 45 and turned onto Edwards Rd. along with the bus.

The Antioch Fire Dept. had to get the Valles car out from under the rear of the bus before the driver could be gotten out of his vehicle and taken to the hospital by the Antioch Rescue Squad for treatment.

No citation had been issued as of press time.

Good news in The News

Play ball!

The Antioch Baseball League has announced the team sign up dates for the coming summer season. Boys and girls from the ages of five to 15 can sign up for the season at the Scout House on Main Street, Antioch at any of the following times: Friday, Feb. 24, 6 to 8 p.m.; Saturday, Feb. 25, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; Friday, March 2, 6 to 8 p.m. and Saturday, March 3, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The cost per family is $30 for the first child, $20 for the second child and $15 for each child thereafter. Again this year the league is offering its unique "Play for free" program, which allows players and parents the opportunity to recover all costs through the sale of tickets for the league's annual beef giveaway fundraiser.

This year the league will organize and sponsor teams from the smallest t-ball level to the inter-city competitive senior leagues. Last year more than 500 children participated in this program and league officials are expecting a record registration this year. They are advising all to sign up early before team rosters are full.

Crosswalk violators to be fined

Antioch Police Chief Chuck Miller warns drivers that there will be a crackdown on those operating motor vehicles that do not pay attention to pedestrians who are in the crosswalks in the village.

Miller said that he has had numerous complaints from senior citizens and others that cars are not giving pedestrians in the crosswalks the right of way.

"There is a village ordinance making such drivers subject to a $50 fine and the village police have been given orders for a stronger enforcement of this law," said Miller.

The crosswalks will also be marked clearer so non-residents will be able to distinguish them.

Windbreak starter kits available to residents

Homeowners, particularly in exposed or rural areas, can benefit from a new state Dept. of Conservation program which will provide special inexpensive starter kits for protective "windbreak" plantings, state Rep. Robert "Bob" Churchill (R-Lake Villa) said.

"In open areas, high winds can cause severe soil erosion and greatly increase heating costs," Churchill said. "Planting a windbreak near an open field can reduce wind erosion. And, windbreaks along an exposed side of a farmhouse or barn will significantly reduce heating costs."

The special windbreak starter packets contain seedlings for enough trees and shrubs to plant a 500 foot windbreak consisting of two rows of pine trees and one row of shrubbery.

The packets are available at regional Conservation offices, Extension Service Offices or by writing directly to the Dept. of Conservation, Division of Forest Resources and Natural Heritage, 524 S. Second St., Springfield, Ill. 62706. The packets cost $13.50 delivered.

"These windbreak packages are extremely inexpensive and can pay for themselves in no time through reduced heating costs alone," Churchill stressed. "Conserving our soil and energy resources is something we should all try to do."

Planning Dept. proposes drainage prevention plan

The Lake County Regional Planning Commission has approved a preliminary outline for a program to protect and maintain the county's drainage ways. The outline is based on a recent survey of drainage districts, municipalities, park districts and other governmental units in Lake County.

Seventy percent of those entities have responded, expressing the greatest interest in soil erosion and sedimentation control, storm water detention, stream channel maintenance and floodplain management. A final work plan will be presented to the Regional Planning Commission at its March 27 meeting.

proper surface drainage and flood control and a public education program promoting each of these efforts. In its second year, the program will begin to develop a county-wide drainage plan. The plan will focus on developing uniform, countywide stormwater management policies and basin-wide approaches for implementing them.

This project is a cooperative effort between the county's Dept. of Planning, Zoning and Environmental Quality and the U. S. Soil Conservation Service. For additional information contact Susan Guderley with the Department of Planning, Zoning and Environmental Quality at (312) 689-6350.

WATCH FOR THESE SYMPTOMS

Q. What are the symptoms of periodontal disease?

A. Periodontal disease has four main stages of progression. Stage No. 1 — plaque and calculus accumulate, causing inflammation at the gum line. Stage No. 2 — the inflammation or irritation causes gums to swell and bleed easily. Either of these first two stages is a "red alert" that something is not right; it's time to see your dentist.

If you ignore these, Stage No. 3 is heavy build-up of calculus and plaque. Gums recede around the teeth still further, periodontal pockets form between gums and teeth, and the disease infects the bone. This is called "periodontitis." Stage No. 4 (pyorrhea) occurs when most of the bone support for the teeth is destroyed and the remaining teeth fall out or must be extracted.

Magic entertainment set for grade school

When it comes to family entertainment, nothing tops the list of favorites like a great magic show. And few magic acts compare with John Ripp's "Magical Encounter."

A master of illusion, Ripp has more of a Doug Henning - Los Vegas style than the stereotype, with top hat, white tie, and tails.

His show includes: dissecting his wife (!) Karyl into three parts; suspending her in mid-air, & making his pet ferret (no bunny!) disappear for highlights. The audience even gets into the game of illusion!

Ripp was featured at Lakehurst Mall last November where he was a tremendous hit!

The Antioch Lower-Grade PTO is proud to present this outstanding performance as a public service at the Antioch Lower Grade School, on Tuesday, March 6, at 7 p.m.

Audience participates

W. C. Petty to show Imagination Theater

Imagination Theater, Inc. will present its program "THE PLAYMAKERS," on March 23, at 1:15 p.m. at W. C. Petty School in Antioch.

This unique concept in educational participatory theater was developed in 1966. Imagination Theater encourages the audience to improvise and participate throughout the performance.

The audience becomes the actors! Imagination, voice, body movement and feelings are demonstrated as the "tools" one can use to become a "Playmaker" every day.

Since the audience suggests the plot, characters and feeling, then provides the acting, anything can happen - and usually does!

This program is funded in part by a grant from the Illinois Arts Council, a state agency, and the "Arts Tour '84" program.

The first paper money in the North American colonies appeared in 1685 in the form of playing cards used in Canada. They were signed by the French colonial governor.

When I think about it

Pursuit of Trivial Pursuit out does Cabbage Kids

by GLORIA DAVIS

You've all heard of the "pursuit of happiness," and surely by now you realize that happiness for some trivia addicts means answering the "pink" question and filling your wheel with all the rainbow triangles.

Of course I'm talking about the "Cabbage Patch" of games, Trivial Pursuit, the impossible to get game that has taken the country by storm.

Again tales about a "Trivial Pursuit" black market, and complete sellouts immediately after the games are delivered to stores, are circulating.

Everybody was astounded with the homely Cabbage Patch Kids phenomenon, explained by some as the biggest "You can't get it so you have to have it" hype in years.

Yet the same thing seems to be happening with Trivial Pursuit without too much publicity.

In this day of mindless "boob tube" staring, the unequalled success of a non-electronic game, selling for $50 (additions $25 each), that actually takes thought, and much prior knowledge of small varied facts, is an enigma in itself!

Having heard that the game was very popular and also having possession of a mind crammed with all sorts of facts, I bought the genius (how's that for conceit) edition of Trivial for the family's annual Christmas game.

Knowing very little about the physical makeup of the game, I was surprised to find that a board and two very heavy boxes of cards, plus some plastic pieces, were all I got for my half-century note.

But being the show-offs we are, my family has gotten more than its moneys worth out of the game.

Well, let me qualify that a bit, my husband has eluded addiction because the only thing that keeps him sitting and awake past 9 p.m. (when we usually play) is the Packers playing an overtime game in California on Monday Night Football.

And my daughter claims it makes her feel dumb though she has been pleasantly surprised at some of the answers she has known, the knowledge inexplicably stored in some obscure part of her brain.

I've found that people that are well-read seem to hold an edge in this game, especially if their reading has covered a wide range of subjects.

This is another case of direct appeal to the insatiable ego guaranteeing a best seller, ergo the long-time success of quiz shows on radio and television. We all love to show how smart we are even if it's done in anonymous armchair style.

Naturally, the other big ingredient is challenge, especially strong in this game because the biggest component is the deposits in our individual memory banks.

Hey, if you haven't sat and demanded credit for answering Jackie Onassis to a question when the answer on the card says Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy, you haven't lived!

And I still think that "the old-time comedian with the big nose that drank a lot and was always making passes at Mae West," is a good enough answer to, who said, "A man that hates kids and dogs can't be all bad."

Not only can consistent playing of this game be a learning process akin to a four-year liberal arts college course, but constant trips to the encyclopedia trying to prove the answer card wrong, is not only good for the mind, but better exercise than that previously indulged in during tv-refrigerator breaks.

Let me warn you, if you really could care less what the capital of Afghanistan is, or if the fact that Gabriel Heatter was the greatest thing next to sliced bread in 1942, forget the game.

But if you are overjoyed by remembering that Jean Harlow and Clark Gable were the stars of "Red Dust," or that the Minnesota Viking are the biggest Super Bowl losers, rush to the nearest variety store and put your bid in on the next delivery.

I've heard that the factory that makes Trivial has been turning out and delivering 65,000 games a day and still the demand far outnumbers the supply.

Of course when I labeled my family's addiction, that didn't include someone as level headed as myself, and no matter what you've heard, I've only been spending all those hours over a hot game board as part of my family-doing-together duty.

But I still don't think it's fair to fold-up just because it's 4 a.m., especially when my wheel is all filled-up and I just need four points on the dice and the answer to one more question to put me in the win column.

Q. Who decided the U.S. should go metric?

A. No one. Metric usage in the U.S. is voluntary but it is evolving gradually in several areas. Consumers are already using the metric system to buy many items in everyday use. These include photographic equipment, cigarettes, automobiles, pharmaceutical products, soft drinks, wine and distilled spirits.

'This Is Lake County' Available To Citizens

A reprinting of a booklet, "This is Lake County, Illinois," has been announced by the Lake County League of Women Voters.

Originally distributed in 1981, the booklet was written as a service to Lake County citizens who want to be informed about the structure of county government.

The booklet can be obtained upon request by any citizen and is being distributed to public officials, schools and libraries throughout Lake County, said Carolyn Sevcik, league president.

Sevcik said that the book can be used as a reference by those who want to answer such questions as "who is responsible for what," and "how do things work in the county?" League members hope that knowledge of Lake County government will stimulate residents to take an active part in their government.

Copies may be ordered by contacting League of Women Voters, 400 E. Illinois Rd., Lake Forest, or calling (312) 234-9486. Booklets may be picked up free of charge or can be mailed for $1 postage and handling.

High school students learn career planning

The vocational department of Antioch Community High School held its second annual Career Day on Wednesday, Feb. 22.

According to Adrian Mueller, coordinator of vocational education at the high school, approximately 1,000 students, presently enrolled in home economics, business education and industrial education courses, had the opportunity to attend career presentations during their regularly scheduled class periods.

Forty four presentations were made in the nine different occupational areas, giving a total of 1,500 contact hours for students.

The purpose of "Career Day" is to provide students with an over-all view of different occupational areas so that they may better plan their future careers. It also gives students and teachers an opportunity to ask questions directly of people active in the area.

Banking was presented by Wally Jaskowski, State Bank of Antioch, and word processing came from Faye Biondi of Endless Words.

Management procedure was demonstrated by Wally Nowakowski of the McDonald Corp., and Nancy Olson of AT&T Communications.

Sales and marketing tips came from Larry Smith of Pickard China and Sandy Siegmeier and Fran Ano of Four Squires.

Mechanics were demonstrated by William Grunewald of Lakeland Tractors and Richard Stevens of the Lake County Vocational Center.

Drafting and building trades came from Doug Beitel of the College of Lake County and Don Blackman of Laursen and Blackman Co..

Information from Dale Eastman of Systems Associates and Tom Lamb of U. S. Cable was of interest to those interested in being computer technicians.

Others talking to the students were Bill Vinnes of U. S. Cable and Robert Roemer of Commonwealth Edison, Toni Burke of My Tree House, Jim Scharnell of Quality Catering, Dr. E. L. Newton of Family Care Dental Center, and Marg Lambert of the Lake County Vocational Center.

In the fight against today's gas costs, you have some powerful weapons at your disposal.

Once you understand just how worthwhile energy conservation measures are, you may well want to join the fight.

If so, you'll be glad to learn that there are many powerful weapons at your disposal.

Keeping your heat from leaving home. One of the most basic steps you can take to reduce gas consumption is to make sure that when you heat your home, the heat stays inside.

That means two things: making sure your ceilings, walls, and floors are adequately insulated, so that a lot of heat doesn't pass right through them. And making sure that heat can't leave home through cracks around windows and doors.

If your home isn't well insulated, extra insulation can be added, often for a very reasonable cost. And caulking and weatherstripping are inexpensive projects perfect for the do-it-yourselfer.

Saving gas all night: it's a matter of degrees. Another important way to conserve gas is to keep your home cooler when everyone's asleep or no one is home. You should set your thermostat down—by 10 degrees or so—at bedtime. Or, for convenience, get an automatic set-back thermostat that will turn the heat down and back up, automatically, at any time you choose, day or night.

For better fuel economy, get a tune-up.

For the furnace. Like any machine, your furnace or boiler can only do its best when it's in good shape. So make sure you have it inspected and adjusted at least once every 2 years to make sure it's giving you its best performance. And be sure to change your furnace filters at proper intervals.

Time for a new appliance? That's the time to think conservation.

When the time comes, to replace your furnace, boiler, water heater, range, or dryer, that's the time to reduce your use of gas, by buying a new energy efficient appliance.

The new energy efficient gas furnaces and boilers can cut your heating bill by up to 20% or more. And that means big savings in the long run. Replacing other appliances with new, more energy efficient models can reduce your gas bill even more.

There isn't room here, to cover the full range of options you have, to help reduce your use of gas.

These are just a few ideas, to get you started.

Another thing that will help you get started is some help from Northern Illinois Gas... and we mean financial help.

And that will be the subject of the last ad in this series.

County seeks volunteers

The prepare for the busy months ahead the Education staff of the Lake County Forest Preserve District is looking for people who are interested in volunteering at the Ryerson Conservation Area.

Volunteers help to staff the Information Desk at the Education Center, schedule programs, answer telephones and orient visitors to the Area.

Volunteers will be interviewed and go through an orientation program to be familiar with the staff and the functions of the Education Center. Training sessions will then be held to prepare the volunteers for their duties at the Information Desk.

Don Strenger, president of the Lake County Forest Preserve District, said, "The Volunteer Program at the Ryerson Conservation Area has been a great success. Those people who volunteer their time and service are an important factor in enabling us to provide meaningful programs."

If you are interested in helping others learn more about nature and their environment as well as learning more about the natural world yourself, please call (312) 948-7750 for more information.

*Spoil it allSequoits trash Warren win in big 66-48 upset

Sequoit Coach Don Zeman's plan to be the North Suburban leagues spoiler became reality on Friday, Feb. 24, as Antioch came through with a giant upset over league-leading Warren, 66-48.

Antioch took a 22-10 lead in the first quarter and the Blue Devils never really recovered from that grand entrance.

The Sequoits outscored Warren, 16-8, in the third quarter making the score 50-28 at the end of that quarter.

Zeman applauded his team for its intense concentration and for maintaining their aggressiveness throughout the game for the best game Antioch has played all season.

He added that he hoped to get some of this back as the Sequoits head for the state tourney.

Dan Berkiel and Don Korjenek led the scoring with 14 each followed by John Humphreys with 12 and Steve Mueller with 8.

Warren outflowed Antioch, 19-12 and Antioch grabbed 33 rebounds to Warrens 25.

But the Sequoits seemed to have suffered an emotional letdown after the Warren upset, causing them to bow to Stevenson, 66-63, on Saturday, Feb. 25.

It was Stevenson all the way, as the Patriots never let the Sequoits see the light of day, leading the entire game.

Korjenek led the scoring for the redmen with 15 and Berkiel was close behind with 14, followed by Humphreys and Mueller with 10 apiece.

The Sequoits will close conference play on Tuesday,

Feb. 28, as they host Niles North.

The Sequoits record to date is 10-14 overall and 7-10 in the North Suburban Conference.

Geo-Karis participates in White House luncheon

President Ronald Reagan addressed about 100 Republican women elected officials Feb. 17 during a White House luncheon, including State Sen. Adeline J. Geo-Karis (R-Zion).

Through the process of seed selections (cultivating superior plants) the Chinese developed the chrysanthemum from the daisy.

"I found the President's staff to be intelligent, down-to-earth people, who really care about the needs of people," stated Geo-Karis. "I was particularly impressed by the various cabinet secretaries who addressed us, because not only were they knowledgeable, but they made all of us feel they were committed to doing a good job."

The women officials, including state senators and state representatives, were invited from 10 midwestern states to attend briefing sessions with Vice-President George Bush, Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, Agriculture Secretary John Block, Housing and Urban Development Secretary Gary Jones, and other administration officials.

"I told Secretary Elizabeth Dole of the Dept. of Transportation that a national bill raising the drinking age to 21 would be beneficial to saving young lives," Geo-Karis stated. "I also told her that raising the drinking age should not be tied to cutting off road funds, because bad roads create bad accidents also. She seemed to agree with me."

"I told Secretary Donald Regan of the Treasury that the interest rates had to be lowered some more if we were to have a real boost in the economy, and he seemed to agree with me."

"I feel that Chairman Volcker of the Federal Reserve should listen more to the needs of reducing the interest rates and not feel he knows everything."

The event was the third in a series of one-day briefings for Republican women elected officials across the country. Two more events are planned.

The women officials also attended a Campaign '84 briefing session with Reagan-Bush '84 Assistant Campaign Director Lee Atwater, and other key campaign officials.

The White House events are designed to give participants firsthand information on administration policies which affect their constituents. They also were encouraged to ask specific questions about issues that concerned them.

"I came away from these briefing sessions feeling that the people who addressed us, and who we met at this briefing and luncheon with the President, were genuinely dedicated to carry out the policies and programs of President Reagan," said Geo-Karis. "President Reagan impressed me as a very humane, compassionate and sincere individual who has common sense, and is determined to keep our country economically sound. It pleased me also that more than 22 percent of his higher echelon staff are women, and some of them addressed us."
